

Call for Expressions of Interest
TO SELECT CENTRES OF EXCELLENCE
PROJECT “REGIONAL TRAINING NETWORK FOR SCALING UP OF PRO-POOR VALUE CHAIN PROGRAMMES”

Background

HELVETAS Swiss Intercooperation (<https://www.helvetas.org/>) and Hivos (<https://www.hivos.org/>), which are not-for-profit organisations, are implementing a 4-year project, the Regional Training Network for scaling up of Pro-poor value chain initiatives (hereinafter the Project), funded by the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD). The overall goal of the Project is that Governments and IFAD implementing partners in the Asia Pacific Region, specifically Bangladesh, China, India, Indonesia, Lao PDR, Myanmar and Viet Nam are identifying, designing, successfully implementing, measuring and scaling up pro-poor value chain initiatives that increase incomes of the rural poor.

For this purpose, a network of regional and national training and service providers will be established and strengthened, to provide technical expertise and training required to support IFAD’s executing partners. The network will develop and offer trainings and associated technical services to a range of clients on a sustainable pricing basis.

Establishing the Regional Training Network (RTN) on Value Chains requires the identification of qualified regional/national training partners (hereinafter Centers of Excellence) with competencies in the value chain programming, certified trainers and relevant training curricula responsive to client demands. The selected Centers of Excellence will become members of the RTN.

The Project will support the Centers of Excellence with updated curricula and master training programs as well as support for network formation and management. The Centers of Excellence will be able to provide technical expertise and training required to support IFAD’s executing partners in developing and scaling up pro-poor value chain initiatives as well as utilise their new expertise and network membership to sell training services to other clients. They shall actively participate in knowledge sharing of the network; and act as a part of a Board to manage the RTN. They shall be part of a research team with other national academia to undertake policy research, which will use evidence to develop relevant policy briefs and recommendations and support scaling up of effective value chain initiatives and approaches.

Details of the Call

This Call for Expressions of Interest aims to select qualified training organisations to become members of the RTN to provide technical expertise and trainings for IFAD executing partners on value chains.

The Project Coordination Unit, on behalf of IFAD, will manage this call and oversee the selection process.

Interested organizations are invited to respond to this call of interest by supplying the requested organizational information and addressing the following selection criteria:

1. Experience in providing training on value chain analysis or market-system based approaches.
2. Network of staff or associates down to local level.
3. Experience in implementation of value chain development projects and programs in addition to training on value chain analysis.
4. Membership and (preferably) demonstrated leadership roles in other networks
5. Existing international linkages and exchange
6. Experience in research, training or project implementation related to social inclusion

The expected result of this Call is a shortlist of Centers of Excellence that qualify as prospective members of the Regional Training Network on Value Chains. Shortlisted applicants shall be invited to submit a detailed proposal for final selection of Centers of Excellence that will participate in the Project and participate in the RTN board.
